to England. Some months ago, it is said, inquiries by mysterious persons were made concerning the citadel and other fortifications.

The men professed to be merely sightseers. Not much attention was paid to them at the time, but now that the dynamite conspiracy has been exposed, it is considered probable that the men in question were some of the plotters, and that they entertained designs against Imperial Government property in this city. The authorities here will not say anything about the matter.

EDWARD J. IVORY'S LIFE HERE. HIS FRIENDS INCLINED TO DOUBT THAT THE

LONDON PRISONER IS HE. The address given by Ivory in London as his home in this city-No. 211 Lexington-ave-is not the correct one. The main facts pointing to the identity of Bell, the alleged dynamiter, as Ivory. the New-York liquor dealer, are that he was a patriotic Irishman and a member of different Irish ocieties; that he is now abroad, and has been for some time; that he was acquainted with Tynan, and his friends are not inclined to tell his present

Edward J. Ivory has a barroom at No. 2,021 Lexington-ave, on the southeast corner of One-hun-dred-and-twenty-third-st. The barkeeper, who was seen yesterday, was reticent. He said that Ivory was out of town, but did not know where he had gone perhaps to Coney Island. When the dispatch telling that Ivory had been arrested in Scotland th the charge of being connected with the dynamiters was shown to the bartender he declared there was some mistake, and produced a letter which he said he had received from Ivory. The letter was dated last Tuesday, and was postmarked Boston. He refused to let a reporter see the letfer or envelope. Later in the day the bartender was more affable and in a more communicative frame of mind. Ivory, he said, left New-York for Southampton on August 19 on board the American Line steamer St. Paul. He had been in bad health for some time, and intended, so he declared, taking the voyage for recuperation. It was his intention to be gone only a month, and was expected home this week. From the barkeeper's conversation it was apparent, although he did not say so, that he was of the opinion that Edward Bell was none other than his employer, but he could not understand how he came to be mixed up with such a man as Tynan or in such a plot. In fact, he did not believe it. Edward J. Ivory was born in Carlow, Ireland, about twenty-six years ago and came to this country when a boy. He was one of two sons and his father was a man in extremely good circumstances. When the father died his estate was diabled to the state was a man in the father died his estate was a man in extremely good circumstances. divided between his two sons. lvory lived there nor had they ever heard of such a man.

Edward J. Ivory is a single man and lives at No. 185 East One-hundred-and-twenty-fourth-st., where he reals rooms from a Mrs. Lvons. There it was said that he had been living at that anumber for about five years and was a quiet man. He was selon heard to talk of Irish political affairs, and did not receive any Irish papers. He was a good Irish dynamiters, it was said.

If it is Mr. Ivory who is in this trouble he must have been drinking," said the woman who answered the door. "He left here about four weeks ago, taking some baggage, and saying he was going away to the seashore for a few weeks."

Ivory formerly owned the barroom at No. 2,399 Eighth-ave., but about five months ago he sold it out to H. J. Madden, who now conducts the place. Madden knows Ivory well, and said that he was a patriotic Irishman. He had a number of Irish Triends, but whether Tynan and Whitehead were smong them he did not know.

SEWALL OR WATSON!

WHAT DOES BRYAN THINK OF HIM NOW? From The Buffalo Courier.

From The Buffalo Courier.

Arthur Sewall was Mr. Eryan's choice for VicePresident, chiefly because after his nonmation for President at Chicago Mr. Eryan thought that it would be good strategy to try to carry Maine in September. He then freely expressed the opinion that his could be done. Even in his present condition of mental exaliation, he must now be convinced that his selection of Mr. Sewail as a running mate was not a brilliant stroke.

BRYAN'S DILEMMA. From The New-York Times.

Bryan is forced to choose between Sewall and Tom, or else to refuse to choose, to his consider-able loss and damage in any case. WATSON THE LOGICAL CANDIDATE. From The Toledo Blade.

In every way Mr. Watson is the logical political companion of Mr. Bryan. He should be on the ticket with the Nebraska man, and now that it is proved that Sewall is a nonentity in politics, there is but one thing to do-take his name from the ticket. SEWALL MUST GO From the Fittsburg Commercial Gazette.

Prom the Fitisburg Commercial Gazette.

The result of the Maine election is, of course, the immediate cause of the increase in the appeals to Chairman Jones to have Sewall removed. It has been shown that his nomination has added no strength to the ticket in the East—the only condition on which the Populists and Populist-Democrats of the South and West agreed to it. To have him remain on the ticket how, to the injury and uncontrollable wrath of the Hon. Tom Watson, the very ideal of Populism, is out of the question. AND WATSON WON'T BE MUZZLED

From any standpoint the plight of the Demo-cratic managers is serious so long as Mr. Watson continues to urge his emphatic and positive de-mands for the support of the fusionists with re-spect to the election for Vice-President.

HENRY HILL ANDERSON.

Henry Hill Anderson, the sentor member of the law firm of Anderson, Howland & Murray, of No. 5 Wall-st., died suddenly from paralysis of the heart yesterday morning at York Harbor, Me. Mr.

Mr. Anderson was born in Boston, Mass., Novemeading clergyman of Boston. The family is of Anderson was prepared for college at Phillips Acad-1841 and being graduated in 1844. In 1848 he was graduated from Williams College, cum laude, sub- E. Reilly, of the 69th Pennsylvania Volunteers.

The monument is plain, but imposing. It is seventy-five feet high, fourteen feet wide at the bare of the Counsel to the Corporation, and the same year was admitted to the bar. His work in the office of Judge Davies was one of large responsibility, being chiefly the trial of important cases for the city. He was almost immediately intrusted with the preparation and trial of the famous "New-Jersey fire cases," arising out of the blowing up of buildings in New-York by Mayor Lawrence during the great fire of 1835. These suits, involving over a million New-Jersey, and after a hard-fought litigation resulted in a verdict for the city. He was also at this time employed by the Croton Water Board to acquire land for the Central Park reservoir, and in these and other important matters was brought in direct contact with Francis B. Cutting, Daniel Lord and James T. Brady, leading lawyers of that day.

In 1832 Mr. Anderson formed a partnership with Judge Davies was one of large responsibility, being chiefly the trial of important cases for the city. In 1852 Mr. Anderson formed a partnership with Amiel J. Willard and Peter B. Sweeny, under the name of Willard, Sweeny & Anderson. This firm from its inception acquired a large practice in public matters. They were engaged in the establish ment of the Eighth-ave, horsecar railroad, then owned by George Law, senior, and were employed in most of the early city railroad litigation. They owned by George Law, senior, and were employed in most of the early city railroad litigation. They successfully conducted for Russ & Reid the protracted litigation against the city arising out of the laying of the stone block pavement in Broadway, the first block pavement lad in New-York.

Claudios L. Monell, afterward Judge of the Superior Court, became a member of the firm. This firm continued until 1857, when, having met with a severe family affliction in the loss of his wife and two children Mr. Anderson retired and spent two years in foreign travel.

Returning in 1858, he was called by Green C. Brouson, then Counsel to the Corporation, to act as assistant. In this position he remained over three years, taking entire charge of the trial of all the cases for the city. He was a partner of Judge Bronson until the latter's death in 1862, when he formed a partnership with Mason Young, Henry E. Howland afterward becoming a partner. Mr. Young subsequently retired Later George Wellwood Murray and Henry B. Anderson were admitted to membership, the firm continuing as Anderson, Howland & Murray to the present time.

Mr. Anderson in 1871 received the nomination for Supreme Court judge from the Apolio Hail Democracy, but was defeated by Judge Noah Davis. He steadily thereafter refused public office, and, although in 1872 nominated by Tammany Hall for judge of the Superior Court, and subsequently receiving an offer from Mayor Wickham of the office of Coursel to the Corporation, he refused both nonors, preferring to devote his time to an increasing private practice.

Mr. Anderson enjoyed a high standing at the New-York bar as a sound logician and a direct, forceful speaker. For many years he had been the adviser for numerous large estates and corporation interests, and as referee had decided many important cases.

He was allways a sincere churchman and was for years a vestryman of Calvary Protestant Episcopal interests, and as referee had decided many important cases.

He was always a sincere churchman and was for years a vestryman of Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church when Dr. Satterie-, now Bishop, was its rector. A member of many clubs, he was particularly active in the organization of the University Club in its present form, and was elected its first president, continuing in that office for nine successive years, during which the club grew into a condition of sound prosperity. Other clubs to which he belonged were the Metropolitan, Century, Down-Towa Association, Lawyers' and New-York Yacht and was a member of the New-England Society.

He is survived by a widow, a daughter of the late William P. Burrall, of Hartford, and three sons, Henry B. William B. and Chandler P., all of whom are actively practising law in this city.

The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

Enoch Pratt attended the public schools in his boyhood and the Bridgewater Academy, from which he was graduated at the age of fifteen years. He then secured a place in a commercial house in Boston, where he served for six years. Leaving his native State in 1831, he went to Baittmore and established himself as a commission merchant, where he had been engaged in business ever since. He founded the wholesale fron house of Pratt & Keith, and later that of Enoch Pratt & Brother, composed of Mr. Pratt and his brother-in-law, Henry Janes. In this and in other business enterprises Mr. Pratt amassed a fortune, supposed to be about $2,000,000. He was president of the Farmers and Planters' Bank and a director in the Savings Bank of Baltimore, was interested in a number of steamboat and railroad companies and was for many years a vice-president of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad. All his life Enoch Pratt took a deep interest in public enterprises of a charitable kind, and his contributions to the welfare of humanity were frequent and on so large a scale that he soon became widely known and beloved as one of the foremost chillanthropists in the country. He was director and president of various corporations, president of the House of Reformation and Instruction for Colored Children, at Cheltenham, Md. which he founded, and to which he gave 750 acres of his farm as a site, and was president of the Maryland School for the Deaf and Dumb, at Frederick, which he established. In 1857 Mr. Pratt endowed an academy in North Middleboro, Mass, his native town, in the sum of $30,000.
